

For my final project, I want to create a web page that guides people where to go or what to do in New York City based on their personality matches. The home site of the webpage will contain two boxes, only words are written. -Some of them may be two images without words- The user has to choose one of the options which suits her best in order to continue. For example, tags such as: chill vs hyper, or sports geek vs music geek, fashionista vs demode, and the user has to be honest with their choices so that the answer will suit to their personalities the best. Questions after questions, the user will receive the answer such as an ongoing festival, restaurant, park, or flea markets etc. (with specific names and locations) that are not tour sights but still peculiar to this city.
