

FINAL PROPOSAL

Because I'm a total typography nerd, I decided to make a website that helps designers picking out a type for their project. The logics are based on the infographic I found called "so you need a typeface". When the users get their final answer, the website would shows several design inspirations that uses that typeface. Also inspired by Pentagram's "What type are you", I'd like to offer users an option to see on percentage how popular their answers are.
